Written by Samuel Zimmerman
Friday, 08 July 2011 15:41

R. Kelly once asserted, “It’s the freakin’ weekend baby, I’m about to have me some fun.” And really, as a film fan, what’s more fun than seeing films you hold near and dear projected once more.

So every Friday, I’ll be bringing you news and reminders of the sweetest repertory screenings across the country to get your ass out and about. This weekend: JAWS, SINFUL dwarves and all sorts of entities hit NYC, L.A “Flatlines,” Maryland gets a HUNGER and Ohio has monster of a double feature!

Note: As Fango and myself are NYC based; these will most often be New York and L.A-related bits, but if you drop me a line at sam@fangoria.com with info of a screening anywhere, I’ll get it in here!

New York City

• The ultimate summer classic! Steven Spielberg’s JAWS returns to the IFC Center (323 Sixth Avenue at West Third Street | 212 924-7771) this Friday and Saturday at 11:30 p.m.

Written by Samuel Zimmerman
Friday, 08 July 2011 15:41