With the American Film Market right around the corner, Fango has been keeping tabs on a number of promising genre flicks. For example, American World Pictures will be shopping around a new supernatural chiller called KILL KATIE MALONE, and you can see some exclusive pix below. The film stars a host of familiar TV faces, including ONE TREE HILL's Stephen Colleti and former Superman and Syfy movie regular Dean Cain.

The movie concerns an evil spirit with malice on her mind. "KILL KATIE MALONE is about three college buddies who buy a box online that supposedly has a ghost in it," says director Carlos Ramos Jr., who co-wrote the film with FLIGHT OF THE LIVING DEAD's Mark Onspaugh. "The friends think it's a joke until they release the spirit of Katie Malone, a vengeful Irish girl who has been reeking havoc on whomever she chooses for generations."

Ramos and Onspaugh strived to distinguish KILL KATIE MALONE from other supernatural fear fare by doing less than your typical FX extravaganza. "We went back to what you THINK is in the room as opposed to what you SEE in the room," the director says. "I think audiences are quickly becoming desensitized, and we keep trying to find ways to scare them with more blood and more effects. So I took the killer out of the room and made you guess where she is, and what she's going to do to you."
