Written by Samuel Zimmerman
Thursday, 16 February 2012 10:24

The anthology is back in a big way, and in addition to the highly anticipated ABCs OF DEATH and V/H/S, we can also expect plenty of carnage via THE PROFANE EXHIBIT. Head below to catch new details and photos from TOKYO GORE POLICE director Yoshihiro Nishimura's segment, JIGOKU NO CHORISHI (THE CHEF OF HELL).

Already boasting the talents of Richard Stanley (HARDWARE, DUST DEVIL, THE THEATRE BIZARRE), THE PROFANE EXHIBIT warns "there are no boundaries," and looks to have decidedly macabre take on the world. Nishimura's segment, starring AUDITION and HELLDRIVER's Eihi Shiina, is described thusly:

"Serial killing and cannibalism meet gourmet cooking in Yoshihiro Nishimura's JIGOKU NO CHORISHI (The Chef of Hell / The Hell-Chef), a fetishistic tale of murder, suicide and madness set in contemporary Tokyo. Iconic actress Eihi Shiina (AUDITION, TOKYO GORE POLICE, HELLDRIVER) stars as a mysterious, parasol-carrying woman who encounters a school uniform-wearing, wrist-cutter girl on the street, only to watch her escort a man back to her apartment and murder him. But when he proves to be not as dead as he looks, the parasol woman decides to instruct the younger girl in the arts of cannibal cookery, though that also doesn't go quite as well as initially expected..."

For much more on THE PROFANE EXHIBIT, head over to its official Facebook .