FANGORIA is giving away 50 free tickets to see an advance screening of CHERNOBYL DIARIES, the new Warner Bros. horror thriller produced by PARANORMAL ACTIVITY's Oren Peli.

The screening will be held at 8 p.m. on Thursday, May 24 at a Manhattan theater. To enter the CHERNOBYL DIARIES contest, log on to www.Gofobo.com/RSVP and enter the code FANGOT0KP. If you win, you will be able to download up to two passes to allow you admission to the screening. Contest is first come, first served.

Directed by Bradley Parker, "CHERNOBYL DIARIES is an original horror thriller co-written by Oren Peli (along with Carey & Shane Van Dyke), who first terrified audiences with his groundbreaking film PARANORMAL ACTIVITY. When it comes to movies, Peli can instill fear in a way that no one else can. From the moment the six young "extreme tourists" in CHERNOBYL DIARIES drive into the abandoned city of Pripyat, the audience only sees what they see and only knows what they know. Using a natural, improvisational technique, audience members become part of this extreme tour and experience the fear along with the characters on screen. In the vein of the PARANORMAL series and THE BLAIR WITCH PROJECT, CHERNOBYL DIARIES plays on our very real fear of the unknown… of what might be just around the corner."

Watch for CHERNOBYL DIARIES coverage on Fango website next week, and check out the latest clip below!

{youtube}2dQHjkjGJog{/youtube}