The 11th New York Asian Film Festival will be invading Lincoln Center's Walter Reade Theatre and Japan Society from this Friday, June 29 through Sunday, July 15, bringing with it a clutch of genre movies. Read on to find out how you can see 'em for free!

We're offering two pairs of tickets to each of the following:

• BOXER'S OMEN, Kuei Chih-Hung's insane saga of vengeance, black magic and bizarre creatures, Friday, June 29 at midnight at Walter Reade (165 West 65th Street)

• DEAD BITE, Thai director Joey Boy's saga of blood, bikinis, zombies and more, Friday, July 6 at 11:10 p.m. at Walter Reade

• ASURA (pictured above), an anime horror/adventure about a flesheating demon child by Kei-ichi Sato, based on George Wakiyama's manga, Thursday, July 12 at 6:30 p.m. at Japan Society (333 East 47th Street)

• GYO, Junji Ito's striking manga about ocean life turning against us adapted into an animated feature by Takayuki Hirao, Saturday, July 14 at 5:30 p.m. at Japan Society

• TORMENTED (a.k.a. RABBIT HORROR), about a librarian and her little brother tormented by a malevolent bunny toy and more, from JU-ON/THE GRUDGE creator Takashi Shimizu, Sunday, July 15 at 4:15 p.m. at Japan Society

To enter, send an e-mail to FANGORIAScreening@gmail.com and be sure to put “Asian Festival” in the subject line and include your full name and e-mail address. You can list up to three screenings you’d like to attend. Deadline for entries is 12 noon this Thursday, June 28; winners will be notified via e-mail by 10 a.m. Friday, June 29, and tickets held at the theater box offices in their name. See the festival trailer below; for more info, see our previous article , and the official website
and
Facebook page
.

{youtube}PH3moUMCQiI{/youtube}