Yet another new poster promoting ALL ABOUT EVIL has come our way from writer/director Joshua Grannell, this one depicting the character played by Thomas Dekker. Grannell also sent along info on EVIL’s Texas premiere at Austin’s Alamo Drafthouse.

In the film, Dekker (the busy young genre star from TERMINATOR: THE SARAH CONNOR CHRONICLES, FROM WITHIN and the upcoming A NIGHTMARE ON ELM STREET remake) portrays Steven, a teen horror fan who helps inspire and assist antiheroine Deborah (Natasha Lyonne) on a filmed murder spree in an attempt to save her inherited movie theater. Following its San Francisco world premiere (see info here), ALL ABOUT EVIL hits the Drafthouse’s Ritz Theatre (320 East 6th Street) Saturday, May 15, showing at 7 and 11 p.m. and accompanied by Grannell’s “spooktacular” stage show, featuring his alter ego Peaches Christ and co-stars Cassandra Peterson (a.k.a. Elvira) and John Waters regular Mink Stole. Tickets are $17 and can be purchased in advance at the Drafthouse website

“ALL ABOUT EVIL was inspired by my love of cult films and unique, fantastic movie theaters,” Grannell says. “For the Midnight Mass movie events in San Francisco, the cinema is our church which Peaches Christ is a self-appointed priestess. I’ve heard all about the legendary Alamo Drafthouse for years, and I am really thrilled we’ll be making our EVIL Texas premiere at the
