

First two "HUMAN CENTIPEDES" to have nothing on the third

Written by Samuel Zimmerman
Thursday, 05 May 2011 13:36

---

Tom Six has a vision, and it concludes with a third HUMAN CENTIPEDE.

Speaking to EW, the now notorious director updated the world on HUMAN CENTIPEDE: FULL SEQUENCE and where the giant digestive track will go from there.

As far as when audiences can expect the follow-up, which sees the creation of a twelve-person chain, he says, "It's going out after the summer. Not many people have seen it. Only the distributor and the people who worked in post production. They think it's really crazy. I made this joke about Part one being MY LITTLE PONY compared to Part two. People at the distribution company (IFC), at the first screening they had, some people walked away because they couldn't handle the things they are seeing. But they absolutely love it."

As far as plot and returning characters, Six reveals only that mad Doctor Heiter (the insane Dieter Laser) or one of the original Centipede participants will be back.

Beyond FULL SEQUENCE, Six plans to end the series with THE HUMAN CENTIPEDE: FINAL SEQUENCE explaining, "Three films makes a for HUMAN CENTIPEDE for me. Three can be the combination. What I want to do is make HUMAN CENTIPEDE III: FINAL SEQUENCE. And then I don't want to make any HUMAN CENTIPEDES again. I've a terrific idea for it that's completely different than one and two again. I think Part three will make Part two look like a Disney film."

First two "HUMAN CENTIPEDES" to have nothing on the third

Written by Samuel Zimmerman
Thursday, 05 May 2011 13:36

---

I ended up feeling like FIRST SEQUENCE just didn't go far enough. Here's hoping Mr. Six will blow all of our minds with bad taste.

{comments on}