This Friday the 13th, Fright Nights becomes Fight Night as Toronto-based film writer and Fango contributor, Kelly Stewart continues his horror series (at The Projection Booth, 1035 Gerrard St E) on April 13th, with the Fantasia crowd-pleaser MONSTER BRAWL! Read on to find out how to see the latest show for free!

It's special night of monsters for the Friday the 13th edition of Fright Nights with MONSTER BRAWL, the sold-out sensation at Fantasia and Toronto After Dark last year. Set in the tradition of a Pay-Per-View main event, comes a grotesque and hilarious fight to the death featuring a cast of eight classic combatants in all. Along with their colorful managers, these Monsters compete in visceral bloody combat in the ring to determine the most powerful monster of all time.

Also playing is the short film, MELISSA! Born through the perversion of science, the grotesque Melissa must be kept hidden from a fearful society. Melissa's chance encounter with a local boy will set the wheels in motion for a story that explores how society treats outcasts - with a thrilling and violent conclusion.

The director, cast and crew from both films will be there for an introduction and a Q&A afterwards, and amazing prizes will be given out courtesy of FANGORIA, Suspect Video and Anchor Bay Entertainment.

Fango is giving away double-passes to the show to the first two people who e-mail chris@fangoria.com and answer the following question:

Name the actor in MONSTER BRAWL that also appeared in the original BLACK CHRISTMAS and THE BROOD?
